You are not considering all cases when applying this rule. My husbands has wonderful insurance which only requires a $10.00 copay for office visits. He is the only parent which supplies the insurance. And now, he will be punished even further. His child would have to visit the doctor 13 times a year to make up what he will have to pay the Childs mother in additional health care costs. This is just another bonus for the mothers. I believe the current system is a lot more fair. I understand that you may be looking at less "Demand for Medical Payments", but it is also very complicated to understand and will initially result in a lot more activity by your medical payment staff or the Circuit Court.
